ABSTRACT

This guide is designed for the language training of Peace Corps volunteers in Guinea Bissau and focuses on daily communication needs in that context. Guinea-Bissau Crioulo is a Portuguese pidgin without standardized written form that is used as the lingua franca within and among tribes. The guide consists of a brief introduction to the language, brief notes on the relationship of Guinea-Bissau Crioulo and Portuguese, pronunciation notes, a basic grammar (numerical markers, articles, personal pronouns, possessives, demonstrative pronouns, negative forms, verbs, comparative adjectives), a dictionary of grammar elements, and a series of 14 competency-based lessons on these topics: greetings; personal identification; introductions; meeting people; saying goodbye; family; human body; the home; food and restaurants; shopping in the market; tailors; laundry; giving and getting directions; and transportation. Each lesson consists of grammar notes, vocabulary and phrase lists, dialogue(s), and cultural notes. (MSE)

Introduction

Learning Crioulo from Portuguese

Basic Grammar of the Guinea-Bissau Crioulo

Dictionary of Grammar Elements

INTRODUCTION

Guinea-Bissau Crioulo is a sort of pidgin Portuguese. It is widely spoken (as a first or second language) by Guineans of different ethnic backgrounds in all the towns and larger villages of the country. The word order and pronunciation may vary between individual speakers depending on their tribal origin and socio-cultural environment. As a lingua franca, Guinea-Bissau Crioulo is not only a language of unity and inter-tribal communication, but also of business, practical communication at work and personal contact in almost any local community.

Guinea-Bissau Crioulo has not yet been standardized as a written language. Many books exist in which the author has used a particular alphabet to write Crioulo. What you will find in the next pages is also an attempt to facilitate the reading and acquisition of essential Crioulo grammar and common proverbs by non-native learners.

LEARNING CRIOULO FROM PORTUGUESE

Like other pidgins Guinea-Bissau Crioulo has kept many aspects of the Portuguese language, especially certain vocabulary. While some aspects of Portuguese have remained intact others have been slightly modified over the years. Therefore, we find the following:

a. Guinea-Bissau Crioulo language elements that are similar to Portuguese:

- National/International holidays (religious holidays, May 1, etc.)
- Nationalities
- Professions
- Months of the year
- Days of the week
- Cardinal and ordinal numbers
- Expressions of time
- Titles (government, military and civil)
- Cooking utensils, working tools, machines and devices
- Games and sports
- Parts of private and official buildings and furniture
- Names of fruits, animals, seafood and celestial bodies
- Technical vocabulary

b. Portuguese terms of which omission of the last letter makes their Crioulo version:

- Most verbs, except the monosyllabic ones such as: ir, ler, ser, ter, ver, vir

BASIC GRAMMAR OF THE GUINEA-BISSAU CRIOULO

1. THE CRIOULO ALPHABET

A B C D E F G H I J J̃ K L M N Ñ Ñ̃ O P R S T U V W X Y Z
a b c d e f g h i j̃ j k l m n ñ ñ̃ o p r s t u v w x y z

a) Pronunciation hints

The vowels: a e i o u

Intern. Phonetic
Alphabet (IPA):

a is pronounced as in father
e is pronounced as in there i is pronounced as in mean o is pronounced as in low
u is pronounced as in rude

/ ɒ /
/ ɛ /
/ i / / ɔ /
/ ʊ /

The consonants

All consonants of the English alphabet are used except one Q. J̃, ñ and ñ̃ are additional letters which do not exist in English. Note the following pronunciation hints:

c is pronounced as ch in church
j is pronounced as g in garage
ñ is pronounced as ng in wing
ñ̃ is pronounced as in California
x is pronounced as sh in show
r is rolled as in Spanish "rr"

/ tʃ /
/ ʒ /
/ ŋ / / ɲ / / ʃ /
/ r /

2. THE NUMERAL MARKERS

Crioulo maintains most of the Portuguese cardinal and ordinal numbers. Some Crioulo speakers traditional diction use "di" before two, three, etc. (but never before "un") instead of the Portuguese terms for second, third, and so on.

Example: Ka bu coma Andre di dus si i ka kudi primeru bias.
Don't call Andre a second if he does not not answer to the first (call).

The multiple numbers are most commonly indicated by the corresponding cardinal number followed by the word "bias" meaning time(s).

Example: N tai fera dus bias aos.
I went to the market twice (two times) today.

3. THE ARTICLES

Crioulo does not have any articles, except for the indefinite article "un" that stands for both a and an.

Example: N bota lixu na koba I threw the garbage in the ku sta na kintal. hole that is in the backyard.

N oja un gatu na ki I saw a cat in that hole.
koba.

Kumpra um laranĵa di fabur. Buy an orange, please.

4. PERSONAL PRONOUNS

Crioulo personal pronouns take the place of the nouns they recall in a clause or sentence. They may function as subjects or as direct objects.

a) Pronouns as subjects

Secondary form	Crioulo pronoun main form	English pronoun
ami	n	I
abo	bu	you (sing.)
oell	i	he/she
-- *	i	it
anes	no	we
abes	bo	you (plur.)
elic	e	they (people)
-- *	e	they (things and animals)

* When things and animals are subjects in a sentence they are usually recalled by secondary forms of personal pronouns.

NB: The secondary form stresses the subject pronoun, like the reflexive pronoun in English such as "myself, I'm American".

In certain circumstances the secondary form of a personal pronoun can be used as an object pronoun if it's the predicate of the verb "i" (to be).

Example: I ami. It's me.
 I ka ami. (It) is not me.*

* Things and animals are recalled only by a main form of personal pronoun when they are functioning as subject.

b) Pronouns as objects (personal markers):

They are:

-m	me
-u	you (sing.)
-l	his/her/it
-nu	us
-bos	you (plur.)
-elis	them

NB: Crioulo object pronouns follow immediately the verb and some are actually attached to it. The singular forms and the first person plural become suffixes of the verb and the stress shifts to the last syllable, for example:

Patim yagu n bibi.	Give me (some) water for me to drink.
N na ojam na kasa.	I will see you at home.
Fala! pa i bin li.	Tell him to come here.
Mostranu bu futografia.	Show us your picture.
Taksista na leba bos otel.	The taximan will take you to the hotel.
Punta elis se nome.	Ask them their names.

5. THE POSSESSIVES

Both adjectives and pronouns can demonstrate possession.

a) The possessive adjectives

The possessive adjectives in Crioulo are invariable. They agree with the possessor in number and person. Their position in a sentence is before the segment they determine. Usually they are not stressed in a sentence.

na kolega di kuarta	my room mate
bu amigu	your friend
si nomi	his/her/its name
no tera	our country
bo tabanka	your village
se xefi	their chief

b. The possessive pronouns

They are also invariable and agree with the possessor in number and person. Unlike the possessive adjectives, their position in a sentence are flexible. For example:

E ropa i di mi	these clothes are mine
Di bo pirdi.	Yours got lost.

The other possessive pronouns are:

di cil	his/hers/its
di nos	ours
di bos	yours (plur.)
di selis	theirs

6. DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS

They are:

(e)s	this	(e)sis	these
(ki)la	that	(ki)las	those

NB: "es" is used alone to mean this (one) and "kilas" stands for these (ones). In a sentence, their respective short forms "e" and "ki" are usually used for Example:

E fruta(s) kusidu. *	This/these fruit(s) are ripe.
Ki bulana(s) lunju. *	That/those rice field(s) are distant.

* Some Crioulo speakers add an "s" to a word to distinguish between singular and plural, while others don't. You may prefer one way to the other and may want to be consistent, but this is not necessary. Most Guineans speak traditionally without using the "s" for plural forms unless they feel it is essential for clarity.

The demonstratives precede the word or group of words they determine, which can be followed by the adverbs of place "li" or "la" in order to emphasize the location.

Examples: E lugar li	This place here
Ki lugar garandi la	That big field over there.

7. THE NEGATIVE FORM

In Crioulo the negative is indicated by "ka", which immediately follows the subject of a sentence. For example:

Raimundu ka sta li.	Raymond is not here.
Rita ka bin inda.	Rita has not yet come.

NB: An exception to this rule is that the negative marker "ka" always comes after the verb "i" (to be). You will find other exceptions to this rule in the section on the imperative.

8. THE VERB AUXILIARIES

Crioulo has a special class of verb auxiliaries in order to indicate the time, the mode and the aspect of the action.

a) Time auxiliaries

Crioulo divides time into three distinct moments: the present, the past and the future. Each of these moments are expressed by a particular group of time markers.

i. The present moment

There are two forms:

- The simple present, for example:

Francisku ku Toni morauntu.
Francisco and Tony live together.

- The auxiliary "na" + verb stem denotes that the action is taking place at the time of speech. It is the present progressive in English, for example:

N na diskansa. I am relaxing.

ii. The past moment

Here are six forms:

- The verb stem alone (as in the present moment) is used (1) almost commonly as it is in a context (2) where an adverb of time shows that the action was completed in the past. For example

(1) Mininu cora.	The child cried.
(2) Avion ciga sonti.	The plane arrived yesterday.

NB: An exception to usage (1) are the verbs To be (i; sta; and To have (ten/tene). These two verbs take the time marker ba to show that the action they indicate has been completed in the past.

- Verb stem + auxiliary ja.

Rikardu kume ja. Ricardo has already eaten.

- The auxiliary kumsa + verb stem + nan denotes immediate past, for example:

Tata kumsa bin nan. Tata has just arrived.

- The verb stem + ba (remote past and conditional)

N bai ba Bissau anu pasadu.
I went to Bissau last year.

N misti ba pista bu sapatu.
I would like to borrow your shoes

- Na + Verb stem + ba, denotes that two actions were taking place at the same time in the past.

I na durmi ba oca bu konki porta.
S/he was sleeping when you knocked on the door.

- The verb stem + baja, indicates that the action had been completed before another action took place in the past.

N kume baja oca bu ciga.
I had already eaten when you arrived.

iii. The future moment

There are two forms:

- The auxiliary na + verb stem (immediate future)

I na cubi aos diserteza.

It is going to rain today for sure.

- The auxiliary na bin + verb stem (remote future)

I na bin cubi.

It will rain (some day).

9. THE ASPECT AUXILIARY

a) The habitual aspect

- The auxiliary na + verb stem.

Bu ta rapa barba tudu dia. You shave every day.

10. THE MODE AUXILIARIES

Crloulo indicates the mode by adopting some verb stems as auxiliaries. Some are allowed by prepositions, others are not. The more common indicate:

a) Desire

- misti to want

Mininu misti durai.

The child wants to sleep.

b) Duty

- dibi di must

Bu dibi di rispita garandi.
You must respect the elders.

- ten ku have to

No ten ku kaba barbaju li pa dinoti.
We have to finish the work before dark.

c) Possibility

- kapas di may

Kacupa kapas di sirvidu mas aos.
Kachupa may be served again today.

d) Ability

- Pudi can

Tata pudi konduzi. Tata can drive.

11. THE IMPERATIVE

Crioulo expresses the imperative action using the the verb stem alone for the second person singular. For example:

Lanta --- Get up
Sinta --- Sit down

The subject is always expressed in the other grammatical persons. For example:

Bo sukuta --- Listen (to many people)
No kala --- Let's be quiet.

The third person singular and plural are preceded by the particle "pa". For example:

Pa i sai li --- Let him/her get out of here.
Pa e bin gosi--- Let them come now.

NB: In a negative sentence the negative marker "ka" comes before the subject which must be also expressed even for the second person singular. For example:

Ka bu rota --- Don't belch.
Ka no bai la --- Let's not go there.
Ka e mata limaria(s.) --- Let them not kill the animals.

In a negative sentence the particle "pa" is not used. For Example:

Ka i tira kankuran futufrafia.
Let him/her not take a picture of a "kankuran".

12. THE COMPARISON OF THE ADJECTIVES

The following words are most usual in comparing adjectives:

- mas ... diki more than...

Kandonga mas rapidu diki bisikleta.
A bush taxi is faster than a bicycle.

- menus diki less than

Pekadur ta tarbaja menus diki makina.
Man works less than a machine.

- ma puku diki fewer than

Azudanti ta risibi ma puku diki xoferu.
An apprentice earns less than a driver.

- suma as ... as

E mininu jiru suma si pape.
This child is as clever as his father.

Contractions

Some native Orinolo speakers like to speak in short sentences made of contracted words such as:

- ku i = ki (contraction of relative pronoun ku and third person singular personal pronoun)

Ex: E mininu ki (ku+i) manda riba di mi.
This the child that he/she sent up to me.

- pa bia di ke = pe (contraction of the words for the sake of what meaning why)

- ku bu = ku (contraction of the relative pronoun ku and the second person singular personal pronoun bu)

Ex: Pe (pa+bia+di+ke) ku (ku+bu) bai la?
Why did you go there?

- si bu = su (contraction of the conjunction si and the second person singular personal pronoun bu)

Ex: Su (si+bu) ka mistil, kontan.
If you don't want it, tell me.

- na bai = nai (contraction of the time marker ba and bai, verb to go)

Ex: Bu nai men?
Are you going for sure?

- na bin = nin (contraction of the time marker na and bin, verb to come)

Ex: Joe nin men?
Is Joe coming for sure?

NB: This explanation of common contractions is meant to improve the learner's listening comprehension. It is not being recommended for use.

Intensifiers

In Crioulo, there are language elements you can use to intensify the meaning or feeling of an adjective or participle used adjectivally.

burmeju wak -----	blood-red

Cultural Note:

Inviting a person of the opposite sex to your house, particularly at night when you live alone, is a sign of great thrust of love. You may need to state the purpose of the invitation so as to avoid unnecessary expectations or misinterpretation on the part of the person you are inviting. People may not show up if you don't indicate that it is important.

Cultural notes:

"Pon di bias" is a gift. It could be food, fruit, tobacco, or kolanut that you bring from your trip for your host or the people with whom you live. It could also be money you give to someone having to travel. You do not have to do it. It's a gift that people believe may bring you closer to those who receive it. It is also thought to be a good means for calming down somebody you quarrelled with, who do not want to give up his/her anger at you. The most appreciated gift are things that the receiver lacks.

bata tira noda ku feruju na ropa	Do wash the blots and rustlike marks out of the clothes.
ka bu bisti ropa ora ku bu lebal.	Do not wear the clothes when you take them to your home.

Cultural Notes:

Like in the market, a service can be expensive if the requirer is known to be a foreigner. You may need to find out from a host country national about the cost of launder before finding a laundress for yourself. Rewarding a good service whenever possible encourages the launder woman to work at your will. It is advisable to provide the type of soap with which you want your clothes to be washed. If you have the same launder woman doing ironing for you, you may want to explain to her that you need all your clothes to be properly ironed as clothes are sometimes dried on wild grasses which make them itchy.

Sorry, it's seven hundred and fifty (pesos.)

A. -- Bu tene troku di sinku kuntu?

Do you have change for five thousand?

B. -- Nau.

No.

Cultural Note:

When you are among people waiting for a taxi, you lift one finger up to indicate that you are moving alone (taxi drivers would rather stop to carry a passenger who is travelling all by him/herself so they make more money.) If there are two of you moving together, you pay the amount one person would pay should you get off at the same place. It's up to you to pay if the cab has a breakdown and cannot carry you to your destination. To stop a taxi you wave your arm up and down, lifting one finger, two or more according to the number of people you are travelling with. Taxi drivers make a sign indicating that they are going straight ahead; so you wave them on if your destination is along the main way that links downtown to the airport. They also wave one finger or five respectively showing that there is one or no room left. Other drivers flick the two front lights as a sign that they are booked. It is advisable to learn the price-list to be sure you will pay the right fare.
